Burton Morgan Commits $20,000 More to Rigali Barrett Scholarship

ST. PAUL, MN – March 5, 2008. The Burton D. Morgan Foundation of Hudson, Ohio, is pleased to announce that a “special trustees initiative grant” of $20,000 has been awarded to the Dolores Rigali Barrett Scholarship – awarded to select high school students attending Hill-Murray School near St. Paul, Minnesota. This latest commitment from Burton Morgan is in addition to a previous $10,000 donation made in August 2006.

The Burton D. Morgan Foundation was founded in 1967 in memory of Burton D. Morgan (1916-2003), founder of Morgan Adhesives and many other successful business ventures. His foundation’s mission is to “strengthen the free enterprise system by investing in organizations that foster the entrepreneurial spirit.” The Dolores Rigali Barrett Scholarship was established in 2006 in memory of Dolores Rigali Barrett (1930-2005), mother of seven children, all of whom graduated from Hill-Murray School – a private, well-respected Catholic school near St. Paul. Both Mr. Morgan and Mrs. Barrett, through their corresponding lives and legacies, continually emphasized the importance of personal responsibility and working hard in order to succeed.

According to Mark Robeson, a member of Burton Morgan Foundation’s Board of Trustees, “We are excited to partner with the Barrett family and Hill-Murray School on such a worthwhile endeavor. The mission of Mr. Morgan’s foundation is consistent with what the Rigali Barrett Scholarship is all about – and we’re proud to be able to help make a difference in young students’ lives.” Added Mark Barrett, one of Dolores’ seven children, “My family remains humbled by the continued generosity of the Burton Morgan Foundation, and we’re grateful for their staunch support. Their commitment to both my mother’s legacy and to Hill-Murray will go a long way toward helping hard-working students to aim high and achieve their goals.”
